

RL: Rabbitohs in hunt for major sponsor

League Souths

SYDNEY, Oct 24 AAP - NRL finalists South Sydney are in the market for a new major sponsor after ending their association with Firepower.

The fuel additive company and the Rabbitohs will amicably terminate their relationship next Wednesday after Firepower opted against taking up an option of two more years as major sponsor.

"As they were unable to commit to the long term, we decided on mutual parting of ways," said Rabbitohs co-owner Peter Holmes a Court.

"We were happy with the relationship but we felt we needed a partner who could commit to us in the long term and Firepower couldn't provide that certainty.

"Firepower met every financial obligation with the club during the 2007 season and we wish them all the best in the future."
