Yes I believe he is. Conversations were confidentially going on in the background. He goes big, in breach of confidentiality with the aim of discrediting me and stopping negotiations.

You can let people know PHaC is furious that Piggins breached confidentiality agreement made in front of 8 people.

Done. The 'grapevine' otherwise known as email does come in handy at times.

I've made my comment on the thread in question.

Interesting weekend alright. The Andrew Webster article in the Sun-Herald was gold and a masterstroke of timing! As for the "Rally" I have two independent sources that have told me around 260-270 people turned up yesterday to Redfern. Piggins deciding to push ahead with this was a massive tactical blunder IMO. Not only will it dent their confidence and put them on the back foot, but they can no longer bluff about the "community" support they say they have after the pitiful turn up yesterday.

Anyway, I hope tonight goes well and more people turn up than did yesterday at the rally. I trust the right media types have been informed at where and when etc...?
