

RW

Master of my domain

4 October 2007 7:40:50 AM

"Gents,

I need to give you all some notice that I am going to retire The Hutch in the very near future. The actual date has been set (and shouldn't be too difficult to figure out) and I'm very comfortable with my decision. This for me represents a chance at a fresh start and there will be no regrets on my part.

I have set things in motion and there is no turning back so do not contact me from this point in time as I have no intention of changing my mind. When the time comes to flick the switch I will not be providing any explanation. However for your benefit let it be known there have been no external influences that have shaped my decision. It's just something I've wanted to do for a while and now I have full control over my site I can.

Finally, I suggest that some or all of you get cracking in establishing an alternate forum so the good guys have a place to go when The Hutch is no more. SouthSydneyRabbitohs.net is about the only good domain name that hasn't been registered yet. Also, any new forum should (IMO) not have any obvious or subtle links with The Hutch. Allow it to be perceived as anti-Hutch initially (or longer if bitterness demands it) as some serious intel could be collected via new registrations and the like before moving things in the right direction.

That's it, I've said what I needed to say. You won't be hearing from me again.

P.S. The info in this thread is private. If word of it reaches the main forum I will bring forward the closure date and be done with it."